

In a far away town deep in the mountains
lived an abominable snow-girl.

The only thing she wanted
was to make a friend.

But her appearance
frightened the townsfolk
whenever she tried to say
"hello".

Trying to find a solution,
the snow-girl decided to bake cookies.

But the townsfolk
knocked them
to the ground in fear.

Tears welled in the snow-girls' eyes
as she looked at her cookies
scattered across the ground.

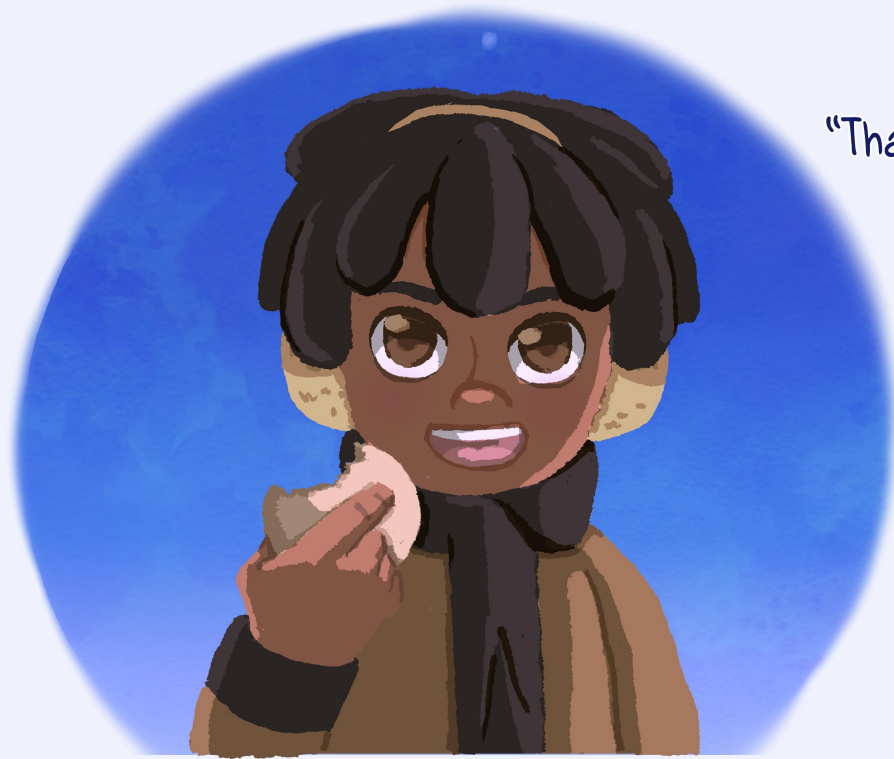

Suddenly, a boy from the crowd stepped forward.
“What type of cookies are these miss?” The boy asked.
“Oh, they’re snickerdoodle.” The snow-girl sniffled.

The boy knelt down to the ground and said,
"Those are my favorite, can I have one?"

The snow girl stared at the boy in awe before saying,
"Yes, of course! I baked them in hopes to become friends with you all."

"Thank you, these are delicious!"
the boy exclaimed.

Warmth filled
the snow-girl's heart
as she took in the smile
on the boy's face.

This made the townsfolk realize they were wrong about her.
So that day they vowed to never make someone who looks different, feel different.